

Phil. 102 Introduction to Philosophy
Quiz: Varieties of Determinism

Fall 2002 ©2002 OPL

Directions: Match the premisses in Column 2 with the most appropriate arguments in Column 1 by placing the number or numbers in the blank spaces provided.

Column 1	Column 2
----- hard determinism	1. not all of our actions are determined by past events
----- soft determinism	2. our choices are uncaused and effective
----- free will	3. certain events are fixed in advance; there might be some free play in minor events
----- predeterminism	4. every event (including mental events) have a cause
----- fatalism	5. events throughout eternity have been foreordained by God according to causality
----- predestination	6. people are free when their choices are effective, even though they are caused
----- indeterminism	7. the probability of an event happening as known from the experience of similar events
----- a priori chance	8. probability of an event happening as known from the experience of similar events
----- a posteriori chance	9. all events are made to happen by God, not by causality in nature

NAME -----